TARIFF REVISION

Discussed by Mr.
Bryan at Des Moines

FIRES THE OPENING GUN

Vast Audience Present
to Hear Democratic Candidate

Whole Aim of Party is to Secure Justice in Taxation—Leaves for Chicago.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 22.—Comparing the attitude of the two dominant parties on the tariff question, William J. Bryan, the Democratic candidate for the presidency, at the baseball park in this city, last night before a vast audience, fired the first gun in the campaign.

He attacked the Republican promises of tariff revision and asked if the Democratic party was not justified when it included in its platform the declaration that "the people cannot safely entrust the execution of this important work with a party which is so deeply obligated to the highly protected interests as the Republican party."

"The whole aim of our party," he said in summarizing, "is to secure justice in taxation. We believe that each individual should contribute to the support of the government. We believe that a revenue tariff, approached gradually, according to the plan laid down in our platform, will equalize the burdens of taxation and that the addition of an income tax will make taxation still more just.

"If the Republican party is to have the support of the people who find a pecuniary profit in the legislation of the taxing power as a private asset in their business we ought to have the support of that large majority of the people who produce the nation's wealth in time of peace, protect the nation's flag in time of war and ask nothing from the government but even-handed justice."

Upon the conclusion of his tariff speech he addressed an overflow crowd in the auditorium and emphasized his views regarding the election of senators by vote of the people.

Mr. Bryan announced that next Wednesday, on his way from Indianapolis to Topeka, he would stop several hours at Salem, Ill., his birthplace, and deliver a speech.

Mr. Bryan left at 10:50 o'clock for Chicago, where he will remain three days and hold frequent conferences with his campaign managers.

VINDICATED

Was Marie Nieman, Charged With Theft, Upon Receipt of Telegram by Police Today.

The many friends of Miss Marie Nieman of this city, were painfully surprised yesterday afternoon when they learned through the report published in an afternoon paper that she had been arrested and charged with a theft, alleged to have been committed in Chicago. Miss Nieman was arrested and later released on $100 bail.

The arrest followed the receipt of a letter by the police here from a woman named Sweep, who conducts a boarding house, and charged Miss Nieman with the theft. That there is nothing to the charge and that Miss Nieman is completely vindicated, was proved this noon when the police received a telegram saying that the Chicago end of the case had been dropped.

DEMOCRACY OF LICKING

TAKING GREAT INTEREST IN THE APPROACHING FALL CAMPAIGN.

Committeemen Meet and Give Glowing Reports Indicating Democratic Victory.

One of the best and most highly interesting committee meetings of the Licking County Democracy that ever assembled in the city, was held at the party headquarters on the South Side, Saturday.

Every committeeman was present, and this alone indicates that the Democrats are taking more interest in this fall's campaign than any campaign in years.

The most glowing reports were made by each committeeman from his district and there is every indication of a big Democratic victory this fall.

The meeting was called for the purpose of learning the political situation over the county and excellent reports were received from all precincts.

There is absolutely no dissension in the Democratic ranks, judging from the enthusiastic reports of the committeemen while on the other hand the open dissension in the Republican party is a well known fact.

Mr. Hamilton De Weese of the Democratic state executive committee, addressed the members of the committee on the state situation and commended them on their loyalty to their party which was manifested by their full attendance and enthusiasm.

There is but one conclusion to be drawn from the big attendance at the meeting and that is that the Democrats are taking more interest this year than ever before. They have shown their approval of the excellent Democratic ticket in the field and there is no doubt but that every Democrat in the county is confident of the success of his party at the fall election. It can only be an indication that the entire Democratic ticket will be elected.

AEROPLANE

IN WASHINGTON NEXT WEEK.

Busy Getting Air Craft in Shape for Test Which Will Occur at Aerial Proving Grounds.

Washington, Aug. 22.—This city will have the opportunity next week of witnessing a duplication of the wonderful flights of the Wright aeroplane which have recently so astonished folks in France. Orville Wright, whose brother Wilbur, has been conducting experiments at Lemans, is busy today at Ft. Myer Va., at the army's aerial proving ground, putting together a strange looking craft, and he expects to have it in condition in three or four days. There will be no secrecy in the test.

SYDNEY PROVIDES ROYAL ENTERTAINMENT FOR AMERICAN FLEET

QUEEN VICTORIA MARKET, ONE OF ITS KIND IN THE SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE.

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 22.—The city again today is en fete in honor of the visit of the American Atlantic battleship fleet. The entertainments of the day were designed principally for the enlisted men, many of whom were given shore leave. Five hundred of the men started early yesterday as guests of the government in special trains for New Castle and the Blue mountains. Many of the men preferred to witness the football and baseball matches, the aquatic sports and an exhibition in the domain by the firemen of the city. For the latter event 20,000 spectators gathered and the American jacks applauded the fine display made by the fire fighters.

While there were no official functions scheduled for the day, numerous officers visited the city and were

NATIONAL CONVENTION HAS ENDED

Phi Sigma Chi Fraternity Elect Officers and Are Tondered Elaborate Banquet at Warden.

Friday was a busy day for the Phi Sigma Chi convention. The principal business was the election of the national officers, resulting in the choice of Stanley Alderman, McConnellsville, O., past national president; Donald M. Snow, Mt. Vernon, national president; Hugh Hay, Coshocton, O., national vice president; Curtis Elmer, Mt. Vernon, national secretary; Carl Ferguson, Logansport, Ind., editor in chief of "Chapter Hall," the official Phi Sig publication. A national secretary was chosen, but his name is withheld from publicity by the organization.

Contrary to expectations, no action was taken officially on the Schurr bill, the fraternity preferring to await developments and act on the defensive. Zanesville was chosen as the place of holding the next national convention.

Reports of the various officers were heard, the national treasurer reporting a balance in the treasury of the organization of over $2000, considered one of the best showings in the history of the national society. According to the officers next year's report will contain even a better showing.

Friday afternoon the delegates and visiting members, in all about 200, had their photograph taken on the east steps of the court house. A flash light view of the guests seated at the banquet tables was taken Friday evening, also.

The banquet was undoubtedly the big event of the convention's social gastric-at various luncheons and other social functions. The event of the day was a banquet headed Admiral Sperry and the senior officers of the fleet, by Vice Admiral Sir Richard Poore, commander-in-chief of the British squadron in Australian waters.

The men are enjoying their liberty ashore and are loud in their praises of the hospitality they are meeting on every hand.

The state banquet given by Admiral Harry Rawson in the town hall last night was a brilliant function. There were upwards of 1000 guests and the balconies were thronged with ladies in evening dress. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion. American, Australian and English flags intertwined. A large bust of President Roosevelt occupied a post on an elevated pedestal behind the seat of Rear Admiral Sperry.

Charles G. Wade, premier of New South Wales, presided. Alfred Deakin, the prime minister of the commonwealth, made a striking address of welcome. "Australia," he said, "is one in body and soul, in welcoming out American visitors. The 16 white clad battleships in the harbor scarcely can be described as vessels of peace, but they might rightly be called harbingers of arbitration. I trust that President Roosevelt will be informed in the words of the famous American captain, who said 'blood is thicker than water.'"

The governor general received a cordial reply from Oyster Bay to his cablegram of good wishes to President Roosevelt and the American people.

The service was delightful throughout, being under the direct supervision of Manager Weiffenbach of the hotel.

The tables, containing places for the large party, were strung with gladioli in profusion, while at each place a rose bouquet aided in setting off the complete beauty of the decorations. The banquet room was neatly trimmed in ferns and gladioli.

Mr. Roe Morrow of Granville, acted as toastmaster and a number of witty toasts were responded to. Fraternity songs were sung and a few "tigers" added zest to the evening's program.

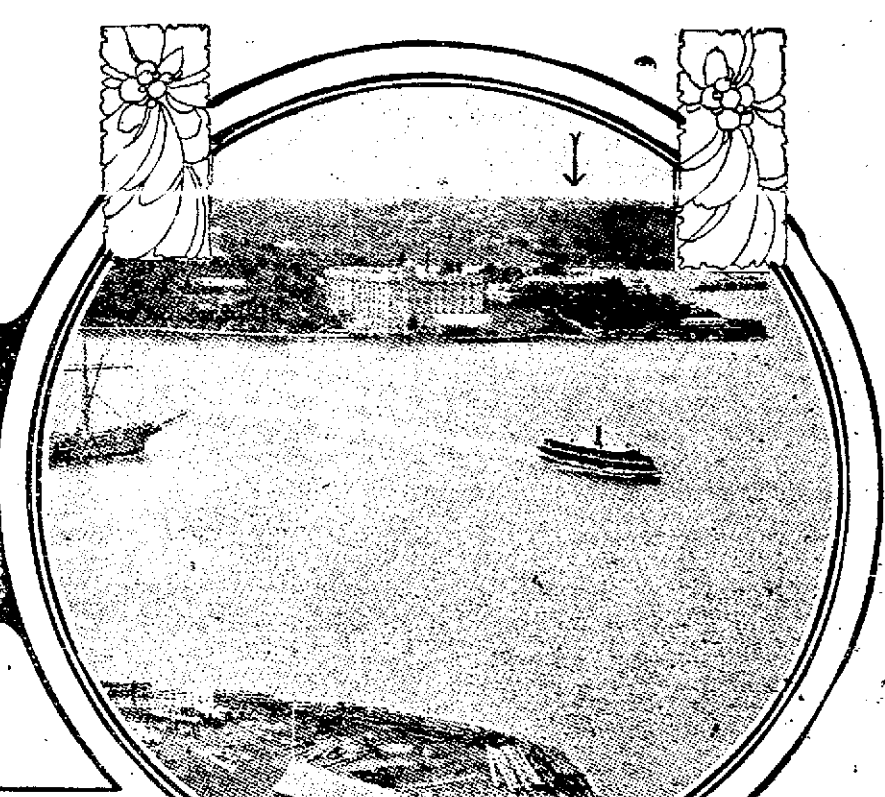

The following menu, served in excellent order and appointment, brought forth many flattering compliments from the guests:

Clam Cocktail
Cream of Celery
Queen Olives
Sautéed Almonds
Radishes
Dressed Whitefish, Montpelier
Cucumbers
Jalienne Potatoes
Broiled Spring Chickens
Potatoes in Cream
Green Peas
Phi Sigma Chi Punch
Macedoine Salad
Frozen Nesselrode Pudding
Gateaux Assorties
Fronage de Brioche
Toasted Crackers
Cakes
Claret

Toasts were responded to as follows: Remembrance, H. Reeves, Lancaster, O.; Toast of a Frat Man, H. G. Reem, Mt. Vernon, O.; Hot Air, Donald M. Snow, Mt. Vernon, O.; Chapter Hall, C. L. Ferguson, Logansport, Ind.; A Round Finance, R. W. Herod, Lawrence, Kan.; The Probable Result of the Anti-Fraternity Law, James Connel, Newark.

Present at the banquet and at the Friday afternoon session, was Past National President, Robert Kerr, an Ohio man, who has been signally honored by the fraternity.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended the local chapter for the excellent entertainment offered the convention, and for the hospitality extended the boys by the citizens in general.

PROBERS WORKING

And Six More Indictments are Returned

GRAND JURY STILL BUSY

Inciters of Springfield Riots Floundering in the Net

Hundred Additional Writs Promised by State—Will Rid Community of Lawless Element.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 22.—Six more alleged riot leaders have been caught in the grand jury net. The inquisitorial body returned indictments against six persons, the documents charging 30 separate offenses. All were predicted upon the trouble at the Loper restaurant, and were identical with those charged against Kate Howard yesterday.

The jury has so far confined its work to investigating the riot at Loper's place, except in the case of Abraham Baymer, who was indicted for murder in connection with the lynching of Wm. Donigan.

"We have only made a fair start," said Assistant State Attorney Wm. H. Hays, "with the character of evidence that is coming in, and the seeming determination of the grand jury to rid the community of the lawless element, there is every chance that a hundred or more indictments will be returned within the next 10 days."

The persons indicted are: Ernest Humphrey, bookster; Rudolph Bradmeyer, mechanic; John Schlenker, grocery clerk; Wm. Sutton, cabman; Herbert Carey, blacksmith, and one other man, whose identity was kept secret at the order of Judge Creighton because he is understood to have fled from Springfield.

RECIPROCAL INSANITY

HAS BEEN DECIDED UPON AS
THE DEFENSE OF THE HAINS BROTHERS.

Wife of Capt. Hains Says She Will Protect Her Babies and Will Make Statement Later.

New York, Aug. 22.—With reciprocal insanity practically decided on as the defense of Capt. Peter Hains, Jr., and T. Jenkins Hains for the killing of Wm. E. Aanis, counsel and relatives of the two prisoners are in consultation today at the office of John F. McIntyre to decide on alienists who shall be called when the trial opens. Regarding the story that she would take the stand in her husband's defense on condition that he relinquish their children and destroy the alleged confession of her relations with Aanis, Mrs. Peter C. Hains, Jr., said in Boston:

"I'm going to protect my babies as far as I can."

Pressed to outline her position she continued: "I have been advised by my lawyer not to talk. No matter how I feel toward Captain Hains; I have myself and my children to look after. Captain Hains is the father of my children, and I am afraid that the sins of the father are visited on the son. You know the rest of it. Any thing I might say now might curse us all. Later I may have something to say, but not now."

Just to show Mrs. Gates that if she could go from Newark and get married in Moundville, Mrs. McGilghy decided to elope from Moundville to Mrs. Gates' old home in this city and get married, and so she talked long and earnestly to the man of her choice, and they caught the train for this city and were married here Wednesday afternoon by Rev. ## Woman's World

MRS. JOHN W. KERN.

Mrs. Kern's Fad! Guess, Just a Nice American Home.

What do you think is the dearest fad of Mrs. John W. Kern, wife of the Democratic nominee for vice president?

Women's clubs, or fashionable dinners, or dogs, or automobiles?

No, no, no! Children. Little children. Poor children.

Of course she is a club woman. But she is a better woman, a thoughtful, wife and tender mother. And after that she bends her strongest influence and devotes the most of her extra time to the little ones of her home city who are sick and tired and curbed by scant surroundings.

There is no one more prominent in the free playground movement in Indianapolis.

MRS. JOHN W. KERN.

Those who like the taste of fruit after every meal will surely like this new dessert, which has been tried for afternoon teas at country clubs. It is made by cutting into bits pineapple, oranges, walnuts, bananas and marshmallows. These are stirred into whipped cream that has been put in the refrigerator and made quite cold.

The mixture is turned out into the small tumblers used at soda water fountains for all such concoctions. As an addition a macaroon is often put on the top or a small bit of brandied peach or a brandied cherry.

The young matron who has Sunday suppers could prepare such a refreshing sweet beforehand. Served with layer cake, it would satisfy any appetite.

Rouge Used on Ear Tips.
It has been remarked that certain women who sit on the piazzas of summer hotels this season are adopting the French idea of using no makeup except a little rouge on the tips of their ears.

"Women who will not make up in the daytime," says a woman who returned recently from Paris, "rouge the tips of their ears. The redness of the ear lobes brings out the paleness of the cheeks. The women whose cheeks are white make them appear ruddy by rouging the tips of their ears a bright pink." This ought to furnish a fresh topic of conversation to those who sit on the summer piazzas and have everlasting discussions on beauty, dressmakers and age.

Alum For Toothache.
Every one does not know that alum in boiled milk is good for toothache. A piece of it should be boiled in the milk and then the fluid held in the mouth, not swallowed.

Alum is also good for a mouth wash in cold water. It checks any bleeding of the gums and heals and antiseptizes the wounds.

If a woman has receding gums which are apt to bleed a little after eating unpeeled fruit or corn on the cob or certain meats she would do well to keep alum dissolved in cold water in the bathroom and rinse the mouth with it after every meal and especially before she retires at night.

Man's Greatest Pleasures.
What are man's greatest pleasures? While the great thinkers of thought have been publicly trying to answer this all important question and, as usual, have only involved a mere intellectual controversy, we have been working quietly and have obtained some startling results. Here is the list complete:

Hearing ourselves talk.
Articulating.
Listening to ourselves.
Ejaculating.
Conversing.
Speaking.
And last, but not least, talking.

Sleeps in Cold Storage.
There is an apartment house in New York which has what is known as cold storage. In each apartment there is a kitchen which is supplied with a refrigerator. Inside the refrigerator it is always ice cold, says the New York Sun. A coil of pipes is covered with perpetual frost. The owner of one of these apartments opens the refrigerator door on very hot nights and sets an electric fan in front of it. In a short time the air of the whole apartment is cooled.

Brown Bread.
This is a new recipe and very nice: One-half cupful of Indian meal, one and one-half cupfuls of graham flour, one cupful of rye meal, one cupful of sour milk, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of water, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in sour milk and one teaspoonful of salt.

Rather Clever.
Something more than quiet humor is in this paragraph, printed at the end of the Edmonton Opera House regulations by Manager Brandon: "Any old ladies afraid of taking cold may keep on their hats or bonnets."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Milk for the baby can be kept warm the whole night if it is kept near a hot water bottle, the two wrapped in a woolen blanket. It has been known to keep warm until daylight.

Two Wrongs, One Right.
Mr. N. resided for some years in one of the Fiji Islands and came to have great influence with the natives, and especially with the chief. One morning a widow came to him in great trouble. During the night the chief had stolen her pig. Would he try to get it back for her? She was quite sure the chief had stolen it, for she had seen it on his premises.

Mr. N. felt that a great wrong had been done, and he determined to rectify it, if he could possibly do so, at once.

Going to the chief and telling the poor woman's story, Mr. N. added, "If it is true, you have done a very shameful thing and ought to send the pig back at once."

"But," exclaimed the chief, "somebody stole mine two nights ago!"

"What of that?" replied Mr. N. "Two wrongs don't make one right."

"Yes, they do," said the chief. "How do you make that out?" asked Mr. N.

"Why," replied the chief, "when mine was stolen I was wrong. I went and took that woman's. Now I'm right."

Gems In Verse

LIFE.

THOU art the quick pulsation of the wine.
The laughter and the fever and the doom.
Skull crowned with roses, madly divine,
Dweller alike in eras and in tombs!

Thine is the clangor of the ceaseless strife.
The agony of being and the lust.
But death, thy bridegroom, turns thy life
To naught, O Life.

Whence thou hast risen to the primal dust!
As one that loves a wanton, knowing well
That she is false, I yield me to thy spell.
But when my cup is foaming to the brim,
I see the scythe and mark the face of him

That is thy lover leering from thine eyes
—George Sylvester Viereck.

LITTLE THINGS.

A GOODBY kiss is a little thing.
With your hand on the door to go.
But it takes the venom out of the sting
Of a thoughtless word or a cruel fling
That you made an hour ago.

A KISS of greeting is sweet and rare
After the toll of the day.
And it smooths the furrows plowed by care.
The lines on the forehead you once called fair,
In the years that have flown away.

'TIS a little thing to say, "You are kind;
I love you, my dear," each night.
But it sends a thrill through the heart, I find—
For love is tender and love is blind—
As we climb life's rugged height.

WE starve each other for love's caress;
We take, but we do not give.
It seems so easy some soul to bless,
But we stole the love grudgingly, less and less.
Till 'tis bitter and hard to live.

—Andrew Lang.

THE PARTING OF LAUNCELOT AND GUINEVERE.
INTO a high walled nunnery had fled
Queen Guinevere, amid the shade to weep
And to repent mild solemn boughs and love
The cold globe of the moon, but now as Mekely the scarcely breathing garden walked
She saw and stood and swooned at Launçelot.
Who burned in sudden steel like a blue flame
Amid the cloister. Then, when she revived,
He came and looked on her. In the dark
So pale her beauty was, the sweetness such,
That her half closed his eyes and deeply breathed.
And as he gazed there came into his mind
That night of May, with pulsing stars, the strange
Perfumed darkness and delicious quiet
In silent hour, but at the last he said,
"Suffer me, lady, but to kiss thy lips
Once and to go away forevermore."
But she replied: "Nay; I beseech thee go!
Sweet were those kisses in the deep of night,
But from those kisses is this ruin come.
Sweet was thy touch, but now I wait at it.
And I have hope to see the face of Christ.
Many are saints in heaven who sinned as I.

There said he, "Since it is thy will I go.
But those who stood around could scarce endure
To see the dolor of these two, for he Swooned in his burning armor to her face.
And both cried out at the touch of spear.
And as two trees at midnight when the breeze
Comes over them now to each other bend
And now withdraw, so mournfully these two

Still drooped together and still drew apart.
Then like one dead her ladies bore away
The heavy queen, and Launçelot went out
And through a forest weeping rode all night.

—Stephen Phillips.

SOUND DOCTRINE.
THE signs are bad when folks commence
A-finding fault with Providence
And baulk 'cause the earth don't shake
At ev'ry pranch' step they take.

NO man is great till he can see
How less than little he would be
If stripped to self and stark and bare
He hung his sign out everywhere.

MY doctrine is to lay aside
Contentions and be satisfied.
Jest do your best, and praise or blame
That follows that counts just the same.

I'VE allus noticed great success
Is mixed with troubles, more or less,
And it's the man who does the best
That gets more kials than all the rest.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

GROWING OLD.
A LITTLE more tired at close of day,
A LITTLE less anxious to have our way.
A little less ready to scold and blame,
A little more cure for a brother's name,
And so we are nearing the journey's end,
Where time and eternity meet and blend.

A little less care for bonds and gold,
A little more rest in the days of old,
A broader view and a saner mind,
And a little more love for all mankind,
And so we are faring a-down the way
That leads to the gates of a better day.

A little more love for the friends of youth,
A little less zeal for established truth,
A little more charity in our views,
A little less thirst for the daily news,
And so we are folding our tents away
And passing in silence at close of day.

A little more leisure to sit and dream,
A little more real the things unseen,
A little nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long loved and dead,
And so we are going where all must go—
To the place the living may never know.

A little more laughter, a few more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years.
The book is closed, and the prayers are said,
And we are a part of the countless dead.
Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say,
"I live because he has passed my way."

—Rollin J. Wells.

SELF APPROVAL.
DO what thy manhood bids thee do:
From none but self expect applause.
He nobles lives and nobles dies who makes and keeps his self made laws.

—Burton.

RESISTANCE.
RESISTANCE to its plinths light
Uplifts the bird in airy flight.
Resistance to the winged soul
Uplifts it to the lofty goal.

—John B. Tabb.

Sufferers' Painful Accident. Mr. Jacob Rhinehart of Washington street, met with a very painful accident on West Church street this morning. While riding a wheel at a very rapid rate, he struck an obstruction, which threw him heavily upon the paved street. At first it was thought his arm was broken, but after an examination it was found very badly bruised. He will be able to resume work in several days.

Was False Alarm. Lumenom from the fire department this morning removed a fire alarm telegraph pole at Fourth and Canal streets, and placed it where it would not encroach upon the sidewalk line. During the process of moving, the fire alarm telegraph wires were severed accidentally, and the telephone wires and caused the big bell at the Central Station to strike out three times. Many persons grew curious and sought an explanation of the mysterious "fire alarm."

A PENNSY NINE FOOT SNAKE STORY

York, Pa., Aug. 22.—For the past five years John P. Arnold, a farmer of York, New Salem, had been aware that he was being preyed upon by systematic chicken thieves, but everything from a man trap to a rat trap was tried, without avail. The honor of making the capture has fallen to Mrs. Arnold, who discovered the marauder, a blacksnake nine feet and two inches in length, and shot it. The reptile is the largest of its kind ever known to have been actually measured in the county.

Mrs. Arnold came upon the snake in an unguarded moment, as it lay beside a fence busily engaged in swallowing a young tow. Getting her husband's shotgun she held it close and discharged both barrels, with the desired effect.

Germany's population increased at the rate of one to 900,000 a year, the result of excess of births over deaths.

"SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?"

"Shall the people control their own government, and use that government for the protection of their rights and for the promotion of their welfare?" or shall the representatives of predatory wealth prey upon a defenseless public, while offenders secure immunity from subversive officials they raise to power by unscrupulous methods?—William J. Bryan's speech of acceptance.

The keynote of Mr. Bryan's speech of acceptance was the question asked by the Denver platform, "Shall the People Rule?" Mr. Bryan was very happy in the matter and the manner of his speech. He had clear advantage over his Republican opponent in that he did not have to explain, add to or apologize for any of the planks of the Denver platform. He made it manifest that he is in complete accord with his party and its platform, and that there are no divisions in the party on any questions of policy or principles.

In discussing the question, "Shall the People Rule?" Mr. Bryan showed that the people would not be able to rule if the Republican party continued in power; that party being so obligated by the trusts and the beneficiaries of the Robber Tariff, that it is powerless to bring to the country any national relief. Said Mr. Bryan: "So long as the Republican party remains in power it is powerless to regenerate itself. It cannot attack wrongdoing in high places without disgracing many of its prominent members, and it, therefore, uses opiates instead of the surgeon's knife."

Judge Taft makes a feeble attempt to reply to the Bryan slogan, "Shall the People Rule?" by claiming that the people have ruled; and are ruling under the Republican administrations past and present.

Then why have we had all this commotion about the rule of the trusts? Why has Candidate Taft himself admitted the numerous prevailing abuses with which the country is afflicted due wholly to the rule of the trusts?

The fact is that the trusts and monopolistic interests will continue to rule if the Republican party is kept in power; and through the success of Democracy is the only way the people can rule.

The Democratic platform declares in favor of the election of United States senators by the people. The Republican national convention rejected the plank endorsing the popular election of senators. "Mr. Taft," Mr. Bryan says, "cannot remove this question from the arena of politics by expressing a personal inclination toward the Democratic position," and continuing, Mr. Bryan declared:

"If I am elected to the presidency, those who are elected upon the ticket with me will be, like myself, pledged to this reform (the popular election of senators) and I shall convene Congress in extraordinary session immediately after inauguration, and ask, among other things, for the fulfillment of this platform pledge."

The "interests" and trusts will continue to rule if Mr. Taft is elected. He cannot, if he wants to, force his party to go back on the predatory wealth and the protected trusts it has promoted and that furnish the money to carry on his campaign.

The only way for the people to rule is to elect William J. Bryan.

A DISGRUNTLED KICKER ON THE PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD'S TIMELY AND PROPER ACTION

It would seem that the writer of the attack on the Board of Public Service in Friday evening's American Tribune only recently awakened from the sleep of ages and with a hurried glance at the actual conditions, took himself to writing a lot of rubbish that shows plainly that the writer did not endeavor to find out what he was writing about before he commenced.

Undoubtedly the most popular move by the Board of Public Service in the city of Newark, and one that was most advantageous to the citizens at large, was the filling of that ditch of filth and stench—the Ohio canal. The demonstration in the meeting of the City Council and citizens in the council chamber at the time the Board of Service was authorized to proceed with the removal of the bridges and the filling of the canal was alone enough to satisfy the most skeptical as to the will of the taxpayers of Newark on this question.

Although the members of the board feel indisposed to give the American Tribune's outburst any attention, some of the facts that were apparently intentionally slanted in that article should be given to the public in their true light, in justification of the action of the board and the City Council.

After the introductory preamble the writer says:

"Some time ago it will be remembered the City Council provided a certain sum of money to be expended in building concrete bridges over the canal at various street crossings in the city."

"After dilly-dallying around with the proposition the bridges were decided against, and a substitute was offered informally to fill the canal. The sum of money appropriated for the bridges has seemingly been used for another purpose and it is not just exactly clear whether or not this is legal. But providing it is, the question arises again as to whether or not the sum has been expended."

In the first place, the appropriation "for building concrete bridges" referred to, was included under Section 51 of the "dummy" appropriation passed January 1, 1907, under the regime of the late W. C. Christian Board of Service. This read: "That there be appropriated from the Board of Public Service Fund—
1-R-22-Canal Crossings, $3000 (Third street)."

At a recent conference between the representatives of the state auditor and the state attorney general, together with city officials, it was learned that the $3000 appropriated but not used, owing to the "dilly-dallying around" of the late W. C. Christian board, would not revert back to the general fund, but would remain in the very fund for which it was originally appropriated. Since that time the council has appropriated $2000 more for additional work in constructing the crossings. Concrete bridges were not designated, but may have been recommended. However, the section in question referred to "crossings," whether they be of iron, concrete or gravel.

The A-T writer refers to the fact that "the Fourth and Fifth street crossings have not only been filled but have been paved," and that when the Fifth street fill was started there were twenty teams and fifty men employed.

The contract for paving South Fourth street and South Fifth street, authorized by the City Council, was secured by Contractors Brennan and Nutter at so low a figure that the small space crossing the canal bed could be paved at such a slight expense, that the entire job, on both streets, far from reached the limit of the appropriations for this improvement. Surely the A-T writer does not begrudge the laborers the opportunity of earning the money they received for the work! And yet it is claimed that their hire will "eat into money at a lively rate."

It is certainly a crowning achievement on the part of the Service Board that they got the crossings paved with the money they had at their disposal.

Last Saturday the total money paid out for the work on the canal filling, under this same appropriation, 4-R-22, of the section 51, was $175.17, and the total paid out for the job to which work was $237.71, making a total cost in two weeks of $412.88 for work which private individuals have offered to contribute for if the city could not or would not proceed with it. The cost for filling the canal has cost the city absolutely nothing so far. The Hamilton-Bader excavation, on West Main street, the South Fourth and South Fifth street paving dirt, has all been donated for this purpose, and the dirt from the Park National bank's North Side excavation will be delivered along the canal for the sum of five cents the load, at a total cost of something under $10.

The probable total cost of the entire canal filling, including labor, dirt and all, will amount to about $2200, of which item the Board of County Commissioners has agreed to furnish $500, because the county is relieved of the responsibility of the bridge repairs.

The writer of the A-T article says further:

"This has all been done since the first of July, the time set in the code for the new appropriation ordinance to be acted upon, and the council has seen fit to hold off getting together on that proposition, and it looks very much like the Board of Public Service has exceeded its authority to spend money."

If the writer would ruminate around the city hall once in a while he would doubtless find that the appropriation ordinance referred to so confidently has been passed in its entirety and approved by the mayor, with the exception of a few small items, included under the head of clerk hire.

M. M. Taylor, of the Board of Service, said, Saturday, when speaking of the attack on the board by the American Tribune:

"There is nothing for us to say except that the attack on the present board is simply the result of narrow minded prejudice on the part of those who did not accomplish what this board had succeeded in accomplishing. We are working for the best interests of the citizens and taxpayers, and not one will question the propriety and timeliness of this improvement. The Board of Service has not exceeded any of its authority and is living strictly up to the lines of the law, and we are endeavoring in every way to promote the welfare of the city."

"Ask the people whether they approve of the present canal crossings; ask whether they are approved by the residents of South Newark; ask whether or not we were wrong in giving employment to these idle men in making this improvement. It resolves itself into this situation: The W. C. Christian Board having failed to accomplish these things, there is dissatisfaction there that this board has accomplished them."

It was indeed fortunate for all concerned that the board decided to fill these crossings in the way and at the time that it did, and it is safe to say that there is not one citizen of Newark who would not approve of the action of the board on this question, unless stimulated to disapproval by some motive other than the best interests of the city and its taxpayers.

That the board also succeeded in paying the canal crossings without any additional expense above the appropriation is a matter over which the people of the city will universally rejoice.

LICKING TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Successfully Concluded Friday Afternoon, After Very Instructive Session—Resolutions.

First in order was the election of officers for the coming year. Miss Hoover of the Granville schools, was placed in nomination in an eloquent speech by Prof. Clemens; Prof. Clifton was nominated in a speech equally eloquent by that splendid young superintendent, Earl T. Osborne, of Summit Station. The vote stood for Miss Hoover, 149 for Prof. Clifton; 71 for secretary, Miss Georgia Taylor without opposition; for member of executive committee, Prof. L. C. Browne, of the Joannston schools.

Farwell addresses by Professor Graves, Superintendent; Powell and Miss Thomson. All these instructors labored heroically during the week for the welfare of the teachers, and that their labor will be fruitful of great good in time to come is one of the certainties.

Superintendent Powell's farwell talk to the teachers for this year was overflowing with good things for all the teachers, who are very fond of this distinguished instructor.

Prof. Graves' good bye talk was replete with noble sentiments, sentiments that made a perennial impression.

At 3:30 p. m. the 59th teachers' institute of Licking county had become part of the great educational history of Licking county. That it was one of the best, if not the best, is the consensus of opinion among all the teachers who are found in their praise of Newark people for their generous hospitality, of Prof. Graves, of the Ohio State university, of Supt. Powell, of the Middle-town schools, Mrs. Thomson of the Chicago university for their entertaining, instructive lectures and last, but not least, of President Riley, Secretary M. S. Taylor, and the executive committee, Profs. Osborne, Pryor and Nichols, for making the institute such a profitable and glorious one.

Only a short time until the regular season at the Auditorium will be opened. Manager Harris has some splendid bookings for his patrons and they include some of the best attractions on the road.

The Orphium, home of vaudeville, will open with a splendid bill on the evening of Labor Day. This popular play house is expected to do good business this season, as the Sun & Murray agency has affiliated with the Keith & Proctor circuit.

Henrietta Crossman's road tour will begin on September 3, at Asbury Park. Miss Crossman will have two productions on tour, "Mistress Nell" and "As You Like It."

Weather Bureau reported hottest August 13 in 20 years. Regardless of this or the number 13, "The Traveling Salesman" played to absolute capacity at the Liberty theater on that date.

The New Grand theater on South Park Place will open next Monday with vaudeville. This pretty little theater has been drawing good audiences and will prove a popular place of amusement. The management promises a number of good acts during the coming week.

The season at Buckeye Lake has been very successful and Manager Will D. Harris is greatly pleased with the patronage accorded that popular resort. He expects to make a number of improvements next season which will add to the beautiful appearance of the grounds.

As illustrating the work on and expense of productions for a season's attractions, Henry B. Harris' studios have turned out up to October 1, 42 entire sets of scenery at a cost of $37,000.

Miss Beatrice Prentice who scored a personal hit as the Mexican girl in "The Ranger," will have the role of Julie Bagnieu, a French-Canadian girl with Robert Edson in "The Call of the North."

Jack Warburton and Nancy Boyer, old Newark favorites, open an engagement at Idlewild Casino Sunday. Both are popular in this city, where they have appeared in past seasons with the American Stock company, and are bound to be a good drawing card.

Mr. Augustus Pitou, Jr., whose wife, Gertrude Coghlan, is appearing in the chief feminine role in James Forbes' new comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," has been appointed business manager of the company.

The formal inaugural of the third season of Rosa Stahl in "The Chorus Lady," will begin at the Grand Opera House, New York, on September 7.

Oliver Oliver will have the role of Mrs. Brockton in "The Call of the North," the new George Broadhurst play in which Robert Edson will be seen at the Hudson theater, New York City, next Monday evening.

Mr. George Lawrie while in Columbus this week attending a meeting of the National Vaudeville managers, was informed by Gus Sun that he had secured a number of new and high class acts which would be seen in Newark the coming season. Mr. Lawrie will probably manage a new theater in one of the Northwestern Ohio cities, having had several good offers.

Our theater loving public is anxiously looking forward to the opening of Newark's beautiful play house, the Auditorium. Manager Will D. Harris will give them many a treat this season. He has booked such standard attractions as "Paid in Full," which will only show eight nights outside of New York and Chicago. The big No. 1 company of "The Time, the Place and the Girl," "Fifty Miles from Boston," Geo. A. Cohen's greatest success, "Hip, Hip, Hoorah," the big musical show of the year. He has also been fortunate in booking dainty Corinne, in "Lola, from Berlin," the No. 1 company of "Brewster's Millions," "Lion and the Mouse," "Strongheart," "Graustark," and a number of others.

The role of Ned Trent, Robert Edson's characterization in "The Call of the North," includes a song by Trent in the first act. Mr. Edson, who is always equal to the occasion has himself written a French chanson, the theme of which was suggested by the love affair of a French-Canadian girl formerly connected with the Hudson Bay Trading Post.

When Henry B. Harris' "The Lion and the Mouse" companies go on tour, one opening on August 31 and the other two on Labor day, practically the same players will appear in the piece as were seen in the Klein play last year.

"James Forbes has put another one over right in the class with 'The Chorus Lady,'" says Renold Wolf in the Morning Telegraph of the author's new comedy "The Traveling Salesman," which has during the past week broken all midsummer theatrical records in New York for the Liberty theater has been turning away

MASONIC PICNIC

At Cat Run Was Well Attended— Beautiful and Romantic Spot the Scene of Merry Makers.

One of the most pleasurable events that takes place annually in Licking county has come and gone, the Masonic picnic at Cat Run given under the auspices of Farmer Lodge, No. 153, F. & A. M. This lodge, by the way is one of the most flourishing country lodges in old Licking, and their work will compare favorably with any in the county, though, of course, they have not some of the accessories that larger lodges have.

Cat run is situated about five miles northwest of Granville. It's name is said to be derived from the fact that years ago it abounded with wild cats and was considered a very dangerous locality. Now this is all changed, and this romantic spot has become a great place for all kinds of picnics, both public and private. No better spot can be found anywhere than this little level spot surrounded by high, rocky hills, covered with trees. On one side is a stream, flowing along and singing its song, to itself as it surges over the stones. It is a beautiful, clear stream, but in times of freshets it roars and tumbles and is a veritable terror.

On the opposite side a beautiful, clear spring of very cold water of excellent quality, flows out of the rock. The land is owned by Samuel Smith, he having been raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason in Farmer's Lodge in the year 1870. His only son, George, is also now a member. In this connection a little history of the Smith family might be of interest to your readers and their large number of friends and acquaintances. Sidney A. Smith and his wife, Sarah Butler Smith, came to America in the year 1840 and settled at North Adams, Mass. They came from Ide, near Manchester, England. In 1847 the moved to Cat run, Licking county. Samuel still owning the old homestead. They were hard working people, much respected by all who knew them. They had children, Sidney, born in England and living at Cat run. He has one son, Morrie, married, and owning the late Tom Crane place, one mile north of Fredonia Jorkin, living in Granville, and Samuel, living at Cat run. They also have two daughters, Sarah, married Wm Clark, of Iowa, and Mary, married to Wilson Sikes.

Now let us get back to the picnic. The day was an ideal one, and could not have been improved. The sun shone brightly and there was a beautiful, cool breeze. The throngs of people began to flock to the ground quite early in the day, and by noon there were fully 1,000 people present. This number was increased at least 1,500 by 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The Chatham cornet band rendered beautiful music. The table literally groaned under the supplies of provisions. There was probably sufficient there to have fed as many more. It seemed to be like the loaves and fishes in the Bible, inexhaustible. Everyone enjoyed themselves. I hear a great many expressions from people saying "it was the nicest thing of its kind they had been at."

There were people from all part of the county present. Newark and Granville were very much in evidence. Candidates of both parties were thick as "bugs in a rug."

Speakers of the day were C. L. F. Long, J. W. Horner, Clement Riley, Kinkersville, Mr. Mitchell, B. M. Laimore, Phil B. Smythe, C. L. V. Holt

Watson L. King, Granville, a member of Farmer lodge and C. M. Larson. At the close of the proceedings two children of Charles Barrick, little tots, a boy and a girl not more than seven years of age, sang distinctly in most inimitable style, "Woe, Mule Woe."

Would that we had more of these gatherings to bring people together, get acquainted, exchange ideas and meet on the level and part upon the square.

Lancaster, Aug. 22.—Though Kaler walked Brown and allowed Helley a single, yet Williams allowed him to steal second and then throwing the ball into left field in an effort to catch him on a lead off from third base, was the principal cause of the Molders losing the last game of the series to the Lanks.

Kaler, who worked against White, pitched a beautiful game for the Newark team, and held the hard hitting Lanks down to three little bingles, and got away with his game in a way that surprised and pleased the entire Newark team. White also worked in good form, but he did not pitch the game that Kaler did.

The Molder outfield worked in the nicest kind of style and eight chances were gobbed up by them without a weave. The infield had an easy day, and but five assists were handed by them during the entire nine innings.

It was another hard luck game for the Molders to lose and in the last two contests if the pitchers had been given support at critical times, both games would have been pulled over for a Newark count, for in each instance the Newark pitcher worked in finer style than the Lank twirler did.

The Newark team has returned home for a series of four games, two doubleheaders that they will play with the Mansfield Tigers. Following the Tigers the Lancaster team comes to three games with the Molders and the Newark team then takes the road for ten days. The scores:

CATCHER STREET'S GREAT CATCH

Washington, Aug. 22.—Charles Street, catcher of the Washington baseball team Friday won a bet of $500 made with John Biddle of this city by performing the unprecedented though oft-attempted feat of catching a regulation baseball dropped from the top of the Washington monument. The ball was dropped from one of the small windows near the top of the monument at a height of 550 feet above the pavement, where Street caught it in the thirteenth attempt, the failures being due to a rather brisk wind.

Paul Hines, Buck Ewing, Charley Savder and Malchi Klitredge are a few old-timers who have tried this feat without success. The ball it is estimated was traveling at the rate of 135 feet per second when it reached the catcher's hands. Street wore a regulation catcher's mitt.

Hermanns vs. Wehrle All Stars.
The crack Hermann team, leaders of the City League, will play Sunday morning with the Wehrle All Stars, at the Jefferson street grounds. This promises to be a fast game, as the Wehrle organization is composed mostly of experienced players. "Don" Kelley, late of the Philadelphia Athletics, will pitch for the All Stars, while the old reliable "Jake" Wehrle will be on the mound for the Hermanns. Game called at 4.

Thinks It Saved His Life.
Lester M. Nelson, of Naples, Maine, says in a recent letter: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery many years, for coughs and colds, and I think it saved my life. I have found it a reliable remedy for throat and lung complaints, and would no more be without a bottle than I would be without food." # MASONS BEAT THE ELKS IN EXCITING BALL GAME

Fraternal Teams Clash for First Time and Interesting Contest Results

Elks Lead in Runs Until Eighth Inning Swatfest Put Masons to the Good---Big Crowd Was Present.

It was a terrible swatfest that the Masons indulged in when they beat the Elks 10 to 3. The Elks were outdone or cheated out of the hits that were loose, so he smashed another double and Prior crossed. Kelley, who had led off in this same inning tied to score Helm but his hit 10 to 9. Nineteen runs may look on paper as though the game wasn't interesting, but it was, every minute of the time, and sensational plays—and others that weren't so exciting—were numerous.

The teams were well matched in every department, except the Masons had in Dickey a twirler that was some. In the eighth inning he used curves and speed until six men had fanned. Newman stepped off strong and used everything he had until the fatal eighth proved the death knell to his hopes and the wearers of the blue got to him for a triple, three doubles and three singles and scored six runs.

Over three hundred friends of the orders, and some other fans that were out to see the game, were present when the first ball was pitched and it can be truthfully said that all thoroughly enjoyed the game. Both teams presented a mighty fine appearance when they trotted on the field. The Elks in their white uniforms, the Masons in their blue ones, and both teams were loudly applauded by their friends.

The Elks were first at bat and singles by Poland and Shai and errors by Gerlock and Honker allowed Poland, Shai and Scott to score.

In their half of the inning the Masons counted twice when Crider reached first on an error of Shai slipped around to third when Graesser misused and scored when Honker rapped out a sacrifice to left. Prior who was walked was given second on a balk by Newman and when Wingerter made a bad peg to catch Helm, Prior crossed.

In the fourth the Antlered delegation scored twice when Foust out on strikes Helm singled and stole second. Newman followed suit and when Poland doubled with Wingerter out on a fly, two runners crossed. The men in blue also sent a runner home in the same inning when Kelley was hit in the short ribs and was given his base. While Kelley went to make an inning and see if it was necessary to call in the undertaker as the result of stopping Newman's score, it was put on to run for him and with the assistance of Evans' drive a Newman's error he crossed the plate.

When the ball rolled around it the boys in white and brigade for two home mat. Murphy, led and he immediately. Graesser reached the result of a sacrifice. After Murphy had crossed the second and lean against the side way out in the yard and Graesser, too, rolled around and made two marks on the board.

The blowing winning of the game by the Masons. Kelley was hit and was down on a fly or hit for a single and Kelley's sacrifice three bled for a counted. He bled in his single that counted on a V. A. cracker and and Hall, and didn't want to

Waiting For The Verdict

By T. W. WYNDHAM.

Copyright, 1908, by T. W. Wyndham.

THE ornate clock on the mantelpiece ticked monotonously. The little regular sound began to run as a tune in her brain. She even thought that her fingers mechanically drummed the air upon her knee. It was some inane tune of the hour. Its rhythm fitted in excellently with the ticking of the clock, and both jangled in her brain with irritating persistence.

Every detail of the room had stamped itself upon her mind during these minutes she had sat there—minutes was it or hours since the great doctor had said to her in a voice that had struck her as strangely gentle:

"Will you kindly wait in the waiting room, Mrs. Ainslie, while Dr. Bryant and I talk over matters?"

She had attracted many curious and admiring glances from other men and women who waited in the big, gloomy room. One little, shabbily dressed woman who sat in the corner watched her almost enviously. The shabby woman's observant eyes noted the other's fair loveliness, her exquisite dress, the atmosphere of ease and luxury and comfort that surrounded her, the atmosphere of one who has always been cared for and sheltered, upon whom no rough winds have ever blown, and the shabby woman wondered what had brought this pretty, beautifully dressed little person into the doctor's waiting room. The thought flashed through her mind that it was probably some fancied ailment for which she had come. It was impossible to associate the idea of sickness or pain with that lovely face, those smart garments.

How much longer, she wondered, did these doctors intend to keep her in this dreary room while they discussed her case?

Her case! It was funny to think that they could talk about her case! Why, she had always been the incarnation of health. Everybody had always said she was so strong and well. It was too ridiculous that she should be sitting in a doctor's waiting room, and she herself would naturally never have dreamed of consulting the great specialist at all if her own doctor's face had not grown so absurdly grave when she had gone to him yesterday about the little lump which annoyed her. Personally she thought he had made rather an unnecessary fuss. In fact, she had told Dr. Bryant as much to his face—had, indeed, asked him why he could not simply cut the thing away then and there and have done with it.

Twenty minutes! How could it possibly take those two doctors twenty minutes to discuss her simple case? Why, she had considered it so simple a matter that she had not even told her husband about it or that she was to come and see Dr. James, the famous specialist, this morning!

Robert was always in such an agony if her little finger ached that she had refrained from mentioning the lump to him at all, and he knew nothing of her visit to Dr. Bryant yesterday, much less about the consultation today. Why, her dear, loving, fussy old Robert, the dearest hubby in the world, would think she was going to die at the very least if he knew she was sitting in Dr. Edward James' room waiting the verdict!

"Waiting for the verdict!"

Something in the words framed by her own mind sent a quick little shiver through her for which she could not account, and a vision rose before her of a prisoner waiting at the bar and wondering—wondering, perhaps, whether the judge would presently put on the black cap or not. Ah, well, it must be terrible to be in such a position. She was only waiting—waiting for what?

A sudden recollection crossed her mind of the great doctor's quiet, restrained voice that had held in a sure thing which she had at the moment not quite understood. It flashed upon her now all at once that it was pity.

But why pity? Her heart gave a frightened leap. She picked up an illustrated paper from the table before her and began hurriedly turning the pages, seeking absently nothing. And his face looked so kind and so sorry. Her thoughts ran on till her heart quickened its beat again. "It's nonsense to be nervous," she told herself. "I shall try to read and forget."

She resolutely took up a magazine and read a page slowly and carefully, then read it over again with equal care, but she found herself spelling each word in turn, and the sense of the phrases did not penetrate into her brain.

Nobody can take in the meaning of a story, she thought, when people whisper, and her glance fell upon a stout widow who sat opposite whispering in the ear of a girl beside her.

The little lady watched the widow's head bob up and down as her words became more and more emphatic. She noticed how dusty the crape was upon her veil. "And that's the worst of crape," she said to herself. "The least thing makes it look shabby. I always tell Robert I won't wear crape when I'm a widow."

A smile flickered over her face, and the shabby woman in the corner, watching her, thought enviously how happy she must be to smile like that at nothing. Half an hour now!

Half an hour for two clever doctors to discuss one tiny lump which looked like almost nothing! How she and Robert would laugh presently over the slowness of these medical men! But if they kept her much longer she would be late for lunch, and then Robert would be in a hurry and wonder what had become of her.

Oh, why were they not quicker? Time dragged wearily. There was something aggravating about that tireless clock on the mantelpiece with its persistent voice, and the pair of candlesticks exactly alike that flanked it and the two vases that were such a precise match annoyed her. A wild desire seized her to set them all crooked!

Then she was tired of looking at that hideous silver creation on the sideboard. She was certain it must be a testimonial! And what an ugly one to be saddled with for the rest of one's natural life! She remembered with what dismay she and Robert had received some ghastly old family plate from a rich uncle and how thankfully they had relegated it to a little used room, Robert saying laughingly that it would come in as an heirloom for their grandchildren!

A vision of herself as a white haired old lady made her smile again. She always intended to grow old gracefully—when the time for growing old came! But it was a very, very long way off, and she and Robert had only been married six short months—they had years and years of sunny life in front of them before—

The door opened.

"Mrs. Ainslie," said a trim parlor maid, and the little lady rose and followed her.

And all at once her heart gave that frightened leap again, but she was smiling when she entered the great doctor's room.

Both doctors were standing, and a queer feeling came over her as she saw their faces—that they watched her pitifully—as if—as if she were that prisoner at the bar one of them was just going to put on the black cap.

It was a whimsical idea. Her glance fell almost involuntarily upon Dr. James' gray head, and she smiled again.

Dr. Bryant leaned against the mantelpiece.

It struck her that he kept his eyes averted. She wondered vaguely why he did so. Possibly he had made some little mistake in diagnosis and was rather vexed about it.

"Will you sit down, Mrs. Ainslie?" Dr. James' voice broke in upon her thoughts.

She sat down in the big armchair where she had sat just now—all those minutes—or was it hours ago?—when she had first come into the room today with Dr. Bryant.

Dr. James seated himself at the table facing her.

This room was brighter than the other where she had waited so long. The sun came into it, and little patches of light danced upon the carpet and upon the table that was strewn with letters and upon the great man's kind, quiet face.

Outside the window there was actually a tree. It was April, and the leaves were beginning to grow green and waved gently to and fro in the soft spring air.

Her eyes left the dancing leaves outside and came back to the faces of the two silent men. She realized that they were both strangely quiet.

"Well," she said in a gay little voice, "what is the verdict? You—The words died on her lips. She could not have said why, only something in Dr. James' face gave her a curious sense of suffocation.

"Mrs. Ainslie," he said gently, so gently that a sudden longing to cry assailed her. "I am afraid we have not very good news to give you." He paused, and the sudden longing to cry left her.

Some instinct inherited from her Revolutionary ancestors made her draw herself up in her chair and look the old man squarely in the face.

It was he, not her, who winced a little as she said quietly:

"Is it a very serious operation, then? Don't mind telling me. I am not afraid."

She was dimly conscious that Dr. Bryant turned quickly away from where he stood and moved toward the window and that the silence following her words seemed weighty with meaning.

"No," Dr. James said slowly, "I am sure you are not afraid of an operation. But—there is no operation that we can do."

Again she was conscious of a little movement on the part of the silent man by the window, and she watched with a curious sort of fascination how the pattern of the dancing leaves outside was repeated in dancing sunbeams upon the carpet within. "No operation?" she asked. "But—Then her eyes went back to Dr. James' face.

"But," she continued, after that queer little pause, "then it is not serious at all, I suppose?"

Dr. James lifted his head quickly, and their eyes met.

So profound a pity lay in them that she drew back a trifle. Her own eyes never faltered, only the hand that held her handkerchief clutched it so tightly that it was almost pain.

"I have never had a harder thing to do than this, Mrs. Ainslie," Dr. James said. "You must prepare for a great shock—a very great shock. We cannot operate because an operation would be useless, but—the growth is so serious a one—that—"

"It will kill me, do you mean?" she said, and the color flushed over her face, but she sat perfectly still, her eyes never leaving his.

"Yes," he answered so gently that she almost smiled at him, "that is what I mean."

"And—how many years will it take?" she asked, and she noticed how still her own voice was, how her heart that had bounded wildly a second before was now beating quickly, "or—will it perhaps be—a shorter time?"

She could almost have sworn that the gray eyes watching her grew dim. She realized that the figure by the window seemed to be rigid in its stillness.

"It will be a shorter time than that," The great doctor's voice trembled.

She was so very pretty—so very young and pretty and fair—and so beautifully dressed. It was absurd to think of her clothes at such a moment, but it would have been easier to tell her if she had worn a shabby gown!

It flashed into his mind that it was like killing a butterfly that was dancing in the sunlight, and yet—

"A shorter time?" She interrupted his thoughts.

He leaned forward and laid his hand upon her arm.

"Yes," he said. "I know you will face it bravely." His voice broke again. "I do not think it will be more than a week—and we can do nothing."

The silence in the room was like something tangible, made more emphatic by the chirping of the sparrows in the tree without and the rumble of the busy New York streets.

It was the little lady herself who broke the silence.

"That was a hard thing for you to tell me," she said gently. Then she glanced down at her own clinched hands. "Do you know," she went on, and a queer little smile flitted across her face, "I have torn my handkerchief into ribbons—while I sat here. But—but it won't matter now—will it—if it is only to be a week?"

There was no answer from either of her listeners. Words were impossible to them. Only a great admiration dawned in Dr. James' eyes as he looked into the bright, resolute ones that faced him.

"Thank you very much for breaking it to me so—so gently," she said in that smooth, even tone that never trembled or changed. "It is a very great surprise. A—a week—you say?"

The great man bowed his head. Obviously he could not trust himself to speak.

"How strange!" she said. "Next week there is a big ball—and I am going—I mean I was going—my dress will come home—and I—How strange!"

Dr. Bryant turned abruptly from the window. She saw that his eyes were full of tears.

"It is so hard quite to realize," she went on, "that things will go on just the same—and I—not be here!" She paused, gazing out at the green tree and the sunlight.

"But—I ought not to take up your time," she rose and turned courteously to Dr. James. "You have other people to see, and I hope—I hope you will not have another verdict to give—like mine."

For the first time her voice shook a little, but her eyes were still steady.

"Will you have a car called for me, Dr. Bryant? I should like to go straight home."

She walked from the great man's room with head erect and unfaltering steps, and, watching her, he said softly to himself: "It is the women who go up to the cannon's mouth without turning a hair. What a plucky soul! My God, what a plucky soul!"

Looking from the window of the sitting room, the shabby woman saw the little lady shake hands smilingly with her doctor and drive away. And the shabby woman said to herself, "How young and happy she is, with all her life before her—and such a happy life!"

But the shabby woman never knew what the verdict had been which the little lady had waited for so long!

The Hero of Flint Hill.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

Jed Parker had been courting Mary Stevens for a year when he went to her father to ask the usual question. Jed was a young and worthy farmer living at the top of Golden Hill, and Jim Stevens, as he was familiarly called, lived in the village at the foot of the hill and was a contractor. His work was in the country around more than in the village. He was well liked, but people said he had some odd ideas. Jed Parker bumped up against one of those odd ideas as soon as he had stated his case to the father.

"Look here, Jed," was the reply. "Of course I know that you have been hanging around here a good deal, and I reasoned it out that Mary was the attraction. You are spoken of as a fine young man, and I have no objection to you as a son-in-law. I cannot say yes, however, until you have done something to distinguish yourself. I had killed a mad dog, shot at a horse thief and liked a lightning rod man before I was your age. I like you, Jed, but I want a hero for a son-in-law, and the sooner you toe the mark the sooner you and Mary can get married."

Jed didn't kick over the traces and raise a row, but came to the house as usual. Things were in statu quo when December and the snow and ice came. Golden Hill was a pretty steep hill, and the road winding up was half a mile long. In winter, when the road was slippery, teams went a mile around rather than go up or down. Such of the village boys as had the ambition to drag their sleds to the top came down with such momentum that they were carried through the village, and to the foot of a hill on the other side.

Mr. Stevens had in his employ as contractor a gang of Italians. As winter came on they were just finishing up grading the highway three miles away. There was some misunderstanding about the pay for overwork. They made threats, but the contractor refused to be bullied. They hung about the village, muttering and menacing, and finally decided to take the law into their own hands. At 7 o'clock one evening a deputation called at Stevens' house and captured him before he knew what was up. He was taken out on the street and told that he must either pay or hang. The villagers gathered, but they were not strong enough to interfere. It was then that Mary sent a boy speeding up the long hill to bear the news to Jed.

"Go as fast as you can," she said. "Tell Jed that they are going to hang father. Tell him to come to the rescue. Tell him that I sent you. Tell him it's his chance to be a hero. Run as you never ran before, and I'll give you a dollar."

"What's a hero?"

"Never mind, but fly!"

The road was packed with snow and ice on top of that, but the boy got there.

"By gosh!" was Jed's only reply, and he began to hustle.

He had been drawing up wood that afternoon, and the bobsleds were in front of the house. He got his overcoat and fur cap and the family dinner horn, and as he dragged the sled down to the highway he said to the boy:

"Jim, we are going down the hill a-kiting. You sit in front and begin blowing the horn as soon as we start. Blow, blow, blow! Hang on and blow. I'll sit behind and steer. Now, then, we're off."

The contractor was a man with sand. Even when he saw the ropes in the hands of the excited and determined gang he would not give in. They led him over the bridge to the foot of the hill, and as he was still obstinate they prepared to hang him to a handy limb. In fact, they did hang him. There were thirty in the gang, and while some kept back the villagers with their knives the others pulled on the rope and made it fast. Just as there was every prospect that the lynching business would be an unqualified success the blare of a horn was heard up the hill, accompanied by screeches and yells. Jed and the boy and the bobsleds were coming. They came like a runaway locomotive. The crowd hadn't time to take in the situation when the sled was upon them. It plowed through them like a shovel through flour. It ran over some; it flung others twenty feet away; it sent others sky high. There was scarcely a man left on his feet when the sled had passed, and this was the moment when Mary and a citizen or two came up and lowered the wriggling body. Over the bridge and through the village and half a mile beyond went the runaway, and by the time Jed got back to the bridge on foot the contractor had been carried to his own house and a doctor was working over him.

As for the gang, no one was killed, but there were broken legs and arms and bruises galore, and the town was little better than a hospital for the next month. There were two doctors in the town, and they had twenty-six patients to look after. Four days after the hanging Mr. Stevens sent for Jed and took him by the hand and asked:

"Have you and Mary settled on the day?"

"But I—I thought I had got to become a hero first!" stammered the young man.

"But if you ain't one then I'll never run another chalk line for the dancos to follow! Lord, boy, if Napoleon had gone down the other side of the Alps on bobsleds he could have scattered the enemy without firing a single shot!"

OPENING A BOOK.

How to Handle a Volume Without Breaking Its Back.

Hold the book with its back on a smooth or covered table. Let the front board down, then the other, holding the leaves in one hand while you open a few leaves at the back, then a few at the front, and so on, alternately opening back and front, gently pressing open the sections till you reach the center of the volume. Do this two or three times, and you will obtain the best results, says a writer in Modern Bookbinding. Open the volume violently or carelessly in any one place, and you will likely break the back and cause a start in the leaves. Never force the back of the book.

A connoisseur many years ago, an excellent customer of mine, who thought he knew perfectly how to handle books, came into my office when I had an expensive binding just brought from the bindery ready to be sent home. He before my eyes took hold of the volume and, tightly holding the leaves in each hand instead of allowing them free play, violently opened it in the center and exclaimed, "How beautifully your bindings open!" I almost fainted. He had broken the back of the volume, and it had to be rebound.

How to Sweep a Room.

When starting to sweep a room get everything out of the way that you can. Lift the end of the curtains if they are of material that is apt to catch the dust. Put aside any articles of clothing that may be lying about and pick up from the floor shoes, stools, paper basket and the like. Now start with a clean, even stroke of the broom or sweeper and sweep the floor in sections. When using the broom, direct the sweeping on one point, door-sill, center of the room, or chimney, and gather with a whisk brush into the dustpan. An ordinary clothes-brush will prove very useful in cleaning places under furniture where the whisk is too large to work well. In very small rooms crowded with furniture it is often difficult to avoid hitting the walls and windows with the handle of the broom. This difficulty may be overcome by using a small whisk broom such as the children play with. It is much handier than a large one in a narrow space. If the door is bare or covered with a center rug, first sweep the rug, then fold it back at the edges and wrap your broom in fannel. Now wipe up the bare parts of the floor with the broom thus covered and you will get them perfectly clean.

How to Keep Things Cold Without Ice.

An ingenious woman has devised a plan for having good, cold milk and butter without ice. It is a homemade dairy or pantry, so cheap and successful that any housewife who has plenty of water can have one with very little work. Make a frame, any size, but strong enough to carry a tub of water on top, and cover the frame with burlap or sackcloth. Put a tub on top and fill it with water and put woolen strips two and three inches wide in it so that they feed the water down and keep the sacking wet all the time. The air blowing through the wet sacks keeps everything almost as cool as if it were in a refrigerator, and the butter and milk taste better than if it were shut from the air. Moreover, it will keep fresh much longer in this dairy. An old blanket makes the best feeding strips. Put in enough to have three or four to each side. The principle is that of the water bag, and we all know how cool the water is kept in the soaked canvas.

How to Wash Silk.

In washing silk there are four things which must be avoided, and they are soap, heat, rubbing and wringing. Have the water lukewarm. Make a lather with a little dissolved soap if the garment is dirty. If the article is not soiled much, use bran water. Don't ever allow soap in a lump to come in contact with silk. Take one end of the article and swish it around and around until it is clean. Rinse it in cold water to which vinegar has been added. Add one tablespoonful of vinegar to one quart of water. Place the garment between dry cloths and squeeze, preferably between a wringer. Then shake well to get rid of all superfluous moisture and iron at once through tissue paper with a warm iron.

How to Cure Sleeplessness.

Sleeplessness generally is only experienced by people of nervous temperament and is caused, as a rule, by an overabundance of blood in the head. The most natural remedy for this is something that will cause the blood to flow to the proper channels. Friction applied to the surface of the entire body will draw the blood away from the head. After undressing briskly rub the entire surface of the body with a flesh brush or a coarse, dry towel. If this fails to bring relief, place the hands and feet in as hot water as can be borne and drink a glass of hot milk or a cup of hot cocoa or chocolate. This rarely fails to bring relief.

How to Make a Cheap Writing Table.

An excellent writing table may be manufactured from two boxes, and if more pigeonholes are required four smaller boxes may be joined together on each side of the knee hole instead of two. When nicely sandpapered, sized, stained with perma-gum and finished off with varnish stain this will form a very ornamental and solid piece of furniture, invaluable to those who write, says Woman's Life. Do not be too sparing of screws. They cost very little. Bezel by drilling a hole with a gimlet, then insert the screw, working it well in. The great disadvantage of all amateur work is that it is not done with sufficient care.

MORE ABOUT WATER

Do you say you are boiling your drinking water? Very good. Boiled microbes are less harmful, possibly, but scarcely more appetizing, are they? Then you know you boiled the revivifying element all off and you are drinking dead matter that is clogging instead of cleansing, your system. Then don't forget the decomposition of those same germs, and the beautiful, breeding ground formed thereby for myriad hosts more of the same character. Bottle some of the boiled water and set it away. Set a bottle of Chalybeate Spring Water by the side of it. Then after awhile go see what you have. You can leave it a few hours or a few weeks and the difference will become more apparent with each day.

Chalybeate Spring Water is pure. It is alive. It is healthful. You can't possibly make a mistake by drinking it exclusively. We deliver samples free. Ask for some.
